Location & Lifestyle

Iancu Nicolae is the residential corridor in northern Bucharest known for its low density, quiet streets and family focus. The area first grew as a villa district, and its low-rise apartment developments still carry that character today: fewer neighbours, more privacy and a calm pace of life.

The apartment is near British School of Bucharest, an English-language day school for ages 2 to 18, following the National Curriculum for England up to IGCSE and A Level. The Iancu Nicolae corridor brings together several international schools with British, IB and bilingual programmes, which is why the area is preferred by expat families and by families who choose their home around their children's school.

Daily life is organised in the same part of the city: shopping, private clinics and hospitals, including paediatrics and maternity care, sports clubs and Pădurea Băneasa, the area's reference green space for walking, running and cycling. The community is international and well educated, built around the schools and the residential developments.

The area is car-dependent, and traffic toward the city centre is heavy at rush hour. The advantage is that school, shopping, healthcare and, for many residents, work in the Barbu Văcărescu – Floreasca office hub are a short distance away. Bulevardul Pipera and DN1 provide the road link to the city centre and to Henri Coandă International Airport.

Demand in the area is supported over the long term by the international schools, the amenities and the limited supply of land. Metro line M6, under construction, will link Gara de Nord with Henri Coandă International Airport along the DN1 corridor, a development outlook that matters for the north of the city.
